Brownies Visit Rescue Squad

On Monday afternoon, October 18th, Brownie Girl Scout Troop #308 received a "grand tour" of the Appomattox County Rescue Squad building and all the facilities including an inspection of all three vehicles.

The Brownies were the first tour group to see demonstrated the newest piece of training equipment - "Resusci-Anne" - (lying on the desk in the above picture) a life-like mannequin used for learning and practicing artificial resuscitation. The 29 Brownies, pictured above with Leaders and First Lieutenant Bill Sperry of the ACRS, were quite impressed with "Resusci-Anne" and with the work of the Rescue Squad . . . so impressed that they cheerfully donated all of their week's troop dues, a total of $2.60. These little girls really wanted to help and their donation was greatly appreciated. Beck Hudson, Crew Member, assisted Lt. Sperry with the tour.

The Co-Leaders of Troop #308 are Mrs. Peggy Clark and Mrs. Gail Flint, Assistant Leader is Mrs. Rachel Lee.

Bloodmobile Is Coming Nov. 9

Eighteen year olds, 19 years olds and older . . . all have a special invitation to come to the Bloodmobile on Tuesday, Nov. 9. Liberty Baptist Church is the place, and there's always hot coffee, sandwiches and fruit juice waiting for the "starved crowd" -- that group of men, women and young people who either give a pint of blood OR help out in some other way by typing, serving refreshments, working the nurses' station, etc.

Appomattox received an award recently for being 100% of quota last year. (Soon there'll be a photo in the T-VA about this.) What's needed now --- 108 donors on Nov. 9. We were 100% last time. Let's "DO IT" again.

Abbitt Sponsors Tobacco Bill

WASHINGTON-- The Senate has passed and sent to the President a bill authorizing the sale, lease and transfer of Virginia fire-cured and Virginia sun-cured tobacco acreage allotments across county lines. The present law limits such transfers to farms within the same county.

The bill was sponsored by Representative Watkins M. Abbitt (D-Va.), chairman of the Tobacco Subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee, who said the legislation will be "of tremendous assistance to the producers of Virginia dark-fired and sun-cured tobacco."

Abbitt explained that the legislation is needed in order to stabilize the tobacco program and enable those producers who want to grow tobacco to be able to economically do so. The Congressman pointed out that the total allotment of Virginia dark-fired tobacco exceeds 11,000 acres but only about 5,000 acres were grown last year. Virginia sun-cured tobacco was grown on about 1,000 acres, although the allotment was 2,3000 acres.

Abbitt said some action had

Drive To Keep 'Flame Burning'

The World War I, World War II, Korea and Vietnam Monument to servicemen lost in conflict which stands on the Courthouse grounds in Appomattox was erected by the American Legion Post 104 through donations from many people.

A "Flame of Freedom" burns at the top of the monument and it is this "Flame of Freedom" which now concerns the Post.

American Post 104 still has a debt outstanding on the Legion Post building and thus does not have funds available to burn the gas flame throughout the day.

It now requires about $12 per month to burn the flame several hours a day, according to Commander J.M. Cobb, of Pamplin. If donations come to as much as $5,000 interest from such a fund would perpetuate the flame indefinitely, burning it 24 hours a day as a reminder to all that the 'flame of freedom' should burn forever, says Commander Cobb.

According to Post members, a drive for funds will soon get underway. Donations of $1, $5, $10 or more will assure that the "flame of freedom" will burn brightly, on and on - for visitors, for townspeople - for everyone who remembers our nation's fighting men.

Apt. House Permit Given

Mrs. Calvin Robinson, assistant to the editor-publisher of the TIMES-VIRGINIAN, was unanimously re-elected to the office of Vice Mayor of Appomattox as the first order of business in Town Council meeting. She has held this post for many years.

Councilman Ivey Holland presided during the voting for Mrs. Robinson, and then Mrs. Robinson took the mayor's seat in the absence of mayor H. B. Pack. Mayor Pack, involved in a postgraduate course at Appomattox County High School, had conferred with Mrs. Robinson and with the town manager, C. S. Booth on town affairs with a resulting full agenda of matters for council's consideration.

The town manager told Council that Emmett F. Knight has been employed as a night watchman to assist officer James Ford with law enforcement.

Council was also informed that the town's new fire engine chassis arrived Monday night, according to councilman Burke Cahill. The Chevrolet chassis will now go to Roanoke for installation of pumper and tanker. Cost of the new tanker will be approximately $23,000 to $25,000.

Councilman T.E. (Sonny) Conner asked the members about the current Rescue Squad drive and what Council's responsibility is with regard to the drive for $10,000. The town at present charges the Squad nothing for furnishing water to the building, a donation worth approximately $45 per year. Ivey Holland said the Squad "certainly deserves support" but that he feels that Council, which represents taxpayers already giving the Squad, should reserve any further dollar support until the results of the drive are known. This was done last year, he said, with Council agreeing at that time to hear the Squad request again in case they failed to reach their 1970 goal of $14,500.

This same approach is being adopted by Council this year, according to a consensus Monday night. In other words, if the Squad does not reach $10,000 Town Council remains open to a request for funds.

T. E. Conner asked about a traffic situation on Court Street, Conner said that a businessman called to his attention the fact that the first car on the eastern side of Court Street may be jutting into the street because of the location of the parking markers. Town manager Booth said he would investigate this matter.

Franklin Speaks At Workshop

About 40 agriculturalists and professional planners attended a resource planning workshop at the Central Planning District Commission Office in Lynchburg last week. The gathering included Jim Smith, Charles Perkins and Bob McClenny.

A. D. Williamson, Resource Conservationist, SCS, reviewed the resource inventories that have been made and uses of the information.

Ron Workman, Lynchburg City Planner, explained the importance of soil and water data for zoning. He showed that Lynchburg and Campbell County need erosion and sediment ordinances to stop one's abuse from damaging another. Control of population density with recreation areas nearby is being considered.

H. Bland Franklin, Jr., formerly of Appomattox, told of the numerous courses and educational opportunities offered by VPI Extension Service.

Tom Smedley served as host. "The planning district that makes use of all existing agencies makes the most progress will be the district that makes use of all existing agencies to get the job done," he said.

More Than A Game

Agnes Lewis (above) is helping Smokey Bear with a Fire Prevention game, part of a several-days' stay in Appomattox by Smokey and his fire-fighting friends of the Va. Division of Forestry. Agnes and her classmates at Appomattox Primary School learned that the Farmville District, VDF, consists of ten counties with two million acres of forest land to protect from fire. Each school in the county will have a visit by Smokey, accompanied either by Maynard Stoddard, Assistant Dist. Forester or David Smith, Chief Fire Warden, Appomattox County.
